

Distinctively Christian

Is there anything in your life that is distinctively Christian? How much or how little?

There should be within the heart of every Christian a real earnest desire to lead someone to Christ, and before this can be done we must first learn to bear a testimony for our Lord. Many people say that they are unable to stand to their feet and testify, but certainly this is not the only way.

Why not let your home speak through the things that are seen when people enter? Is the saying of the Grace a regular occurrence at every meal? Is there a time during the day that your family meets for prayer? One does not have to be a fanatic in order to be a soul-winner, but one must be distinctively Christian. No one is going to listen to you relate your faith until he first can see that faith put into action.

It may be that you are in the business world, and in places of great authority. People may look up to you because of your position. If they do, you have a tremendous responsibility to be a good example of Christ-likeness. May your life be constantly saying, "Be ye followers of me as I am a follower of Christ." 1 Cor. 11:1.

The Christian life as it is related to our duties and responsibilities under God is too often just taken for granted. It must not be. It cannot be. There must be a daily determination to do something for Christ every day in winning some lost soul.

May God give to each of us that unsurpassable joy that comes from lifting a man out of the darkness of sin into the glorious light of the Savior, Jesus Christ.
